Meadowbrook Golf Club Opens New Golf Holes

Meadowbrook Golf Club announces the opening of two new golf holes. On July 1, 2011, Meadowbrook hosted the Grand Opening of the new holes #10 and #11. The Grand Opening was attended by an array of guests including our Golf Course Architect Rick Robbins, North Carolina Lieutenant Governor Walter Dalton, many visitors, Club members, and Chamber of Commerce officials.

Designed by internationally acclaimed Golf Course Architect Rick Robbins, these two new holes are only the beginning of our future renovations. Lt. Gov. Dalton praised the beauty of the new holes and Meadowbrook's progress as part of the vision its founders, the late Carson Deck and the late Kenneth Deck, had for Meadowbrook and the new development, Carolina Hills at Meadowbrook, which surrounds the golf course. Other remarks were made by Rick Robbins, William Deck, Meadowbrook's Golf Professional, and Paul Deck, President of Carolina Hills at Meadowbrook.

Our new holes were christened by two feature foursomes. The first group included Rick Robbins, Walter Dalton, Claude Keever, our current Senior Club Champion, as well as Paul Deck, President of Carolina Hills at Meadowbrook. The next group included our superintendent, Johnny Baker, our current Club Champion, Jimmy Reynolds, Gary McMurray, who did the golf course construction and Meadowbrook Golf Professional, William Deck.

The two new holes, 10 and 11, begin the back nine with two par fours. Both offer five sets of tees, large greens, and lush 419 hybrid Bermuda fairways in addition to water and bunkers that provide both a challenge and playability for all levels of golfers. Hole number 10 measures 405 yards from the back tees; hole number 11 measures 440 yards from its back tees. Keeping par at 36, hole 18 is being used as a par 3 measuring 165 yards from its back tees. Previous holes #10 and #11 were a part of Meadowbrook's original layout, built in 1963 by Golf Course Architect William B. Lewis.

William Deck, at the Grand Opening, talked about the future renovations for the other parts of the golf course including the planned conversion to 419 hybrid Bermuda in all the other fairways.

Paul Deck noted the tranquil beauty here “in this corner of the Carolinas. Lake Lure is nearby in one direction and Spartanburg is close by in the other direction.” The new holes are surrounded by patio home sites and custom lots offered in Phase One of Carolina Hills at Meadowbrook. Lifetime Golf Memberships are being offered to the first 12 property owners in Carolina Hills.

The recent changes to Meadowbrook have been well received and represent the result of much hard work over the past several years. These and other renovations will increase the enjoyment that golfers who play at Meadowbrook experience. We are confident that our recent steps forward serve as an indication of the future milestones we look forward to achieving, not only as a progressive golf course but also as an up and coming community.
